An Arkansas Man Allows a Rabid Dog to Bite a Chunk Out of His Arm.

The doctor explained that he did not care for the loss of $500, but he did not believe hydrophobia could be cured and he did not wish to be a party to even a fool's death, as he expressed it. Seeing that he was likely to be besieged by an army of cranks who were willing to gain notoriety by being bitten by a mad dog, he hastily withdrew his offer and published the withdrawal. But the Arkansas man was not to be put off in this manner. Having been knocked out of the coveted $500 he determined, nevertheless, to prove his faith in mad stones. Seeking Dr. White for a witness he proceeded to Dr. Small's residence. There he gained access to the rabid animal.

The dog was writhing horribly, foaming freely and snapping viciously. It was in the midst of a terrible convulsion and evidently in the last stage of rabies. The rash man boldly bared his arm, deliberaterash man boldly bared his arm, deliberately stepped up to the furious animal and received a bite. The animal buried its venomous fangs in the flesh of the man's arm, bit out a chunk of flesh, leaving a gaping and ghastly wound. The dog died in convulsions fifteen minutes later. The man repaired to Dr. White's office, and applied the doctor's madstone. It adhered several times. The man had his wound bound up, and expressed himself as satisfied that he would recover speedily and Though the dog was dead this was not the end of Dr. Small's proposition. Acceptances began to pour in, not only by mail, but by telegraph. Up to date he has had to pay out several dollars in receiving telegrams. Among those who telegraphed W. Dickson, of Kansas City, the owner of a madstone, wrote hy mail and wanted to be bitten. He wanted the dog taken to Kansas City, and offered to put up a forfeit of $1.000 to bind him to be bitten. In case Dr. Small would not or could not take the dog to Kansas City he signified his willingness to come to bitten by mad dogs with his single mad-stone in twenty years. I can find, besides myself, plenty of men right here in Kansas City who will take your offer of $500. I will guarantee to bring five men to be bitten, each one for $100, if this will suit you."

Angelica, F. Y., special: Allegany county is agitated and scandalized by the revelations already made in the Whitney divorce suit, which, in some of its features, was more unedifying than even the Carter case in Chicago.

Charles S. Whitney, who seeks relief from the court, is a wealthy resident of Belmont. He is about 60 years of age, is one of the best known men in Allegany county and throughout the Pennsylvania oil fields, and has the respect and esteem of everyone. He has done much to further the interests of this town. Mr. Whitney has been married to his present wife—his third—about eleven years, she being the divorced wife of a Mr. white, of Oil City, Pa. Mrs. Whitney is about twenty years younger than her husband, is pleasing in appearance and evidently was quite a pretty woman in her younger days. The eventful day itself always affords the occasion of a grand demonstration, but supplemented as the day will be by the assembling of the members of the Constitutional Convention that is to form the fundamental laws of the State, probably for a century, will add a significant feature to the anniversary that can never occur again. On the Feurth of July, 1889, the people will assemble at Helena as lawmakers, patriots and citizens to bid farewell to Territorial bondage and join in a general thanksgiving and rejoicing over another year's existence that shall see forty-two stars emblazoned upon the azure field of the grand old flag.
